MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence
FROM: Director of Central Intelligence
SUBJECT: DCI Testimony on Strategic Forces,
House Armed Services Committee

In my testimony before the House Armed Services Committee on Strategic Forces, I alleged that one of the reasons that our missiles are more accurate than the Soviets was that we are better at mapping the world. We have more knowledge of the precise location of both our launch point and target point. Was this correct? If so, how would you best express it?
